

Welcome

Hi

You're here. Whether you're dusty, dazed, or just ready to stop reading emails for a couple of days, you're here. That's all that matters.

This place has been home to me for a while, but it's never quite complete until people visit. People like you, guests who arrive with a suitcase, a hint of curiosity, and a positive glance that seems to say: 'Don't put me in a buffet setting!'

You won't find chocolate on your pillow. It's easy to call ourselves 'minimalist,' but the truth is: we simply believe the best parts of travel happen outside the room. Or over breakfast. Or by the fire. Or barefoot, with coffee, wondering who that bird was.

We're not always perfect, but we're present. If you need something, don't hesitate to ask. If something doesn't smell right, let us know. If everything is just peachy, go ahead and relax, as if we knew what we were doing in the first place.

Do what you want with this time. Go for a walk. Sleep the day away. Order something you can't pronounce. Sit in a chair and just be there for longer than anyone thinks you should.

Our heartfelt prayer is this: that you leave a little different from where you began. Not utterly changed. Just... changed. A wee bit more of yourself. A wee bit less stressed. Perhaps with one or two more stories.

Thanks for visiting.

Seriously.

Phil
